“RAVAGE OF TIME”

ALEMCHILA B.A. 2nd Sem. (Eng. Hons.)

All of man's treasure
Turn to dust
The hand that conquered
Many a nations
Took not a handful of soil
All of man's wisdom
Stored in the brain
Becomes food for the worm

Beauty and youth
Conquered by age
Love and passion
Separated by death
Human vanities and prejudice
Vanish in air
What remains behind
Is the dust beneath sore

“Beauty”

NUNGSHIJUNGLA B.A. 2nd Semester

Oh beauty you are so much of confidence
Sometimes fall in pride
Sometimes fall on attitude
Sometimes fall in lust
And sometimes fall in love
Still, beauty you are adored by the world.

Oh! Beauty is it you who longs for the world?
Or is it the world who longs for you?
Are you fair with yourself?
Or are you fair with the world?
Still, beauty you are adored by the world?

Oh! Beauty you are beauty indeed
But are you beauty from the inside?
Or are you beauty only from the outside?
If you are a beauty from the inside
I adore thee
For you will not perish
But if you are a beauty from the outside
Let me not adore you
Because you will soon fade away.

“IMPOSITION”

NGON P. B.A. 4th Sem. Sociology Dept.

Hello!
Dear imposition
Where did you come from?
Now its hard for me to forgive you
Better you go back.
Whole night I stay awake
Writing you
While my friends get into deep slumber.
Thought you are best for me
But you are nothing to me
You only wasted my time
Gaining without any
You FELON.
Now my pen has run out of ink
You unforgiving IMPOSITION
Go away.

Competition! What will be like?
Twice at once, heart bounces;
Not fear of the competition
But the puzzle of the opponents.
Striving for the best and winning
Is what one struggles.

Hard work, sacrifice, mindfulness, exercise,
These are your ingredients,
To be the champions, they fight.
Give your best and win
Or sleep calm and regret,
Have your choice, its competition!

To soar high with glory and laurel,
One sheds his hardest tears.
Striking down an opponent and a step ahead
Is what a winner strives.
Take a deep breath and a relieving sigh
Here comes the winner that sacrificed the best

A little bird once declared
Competition-----
Breeds in hatred.
My thoughts contradict,
I'd say-----
A healthy verdict.

A penny for my thoughts?
I'd cheerfully declare-----
I see a better side of things
Someone has to walk away----
With the cheers and applause,
Victory it is!

If your mind brought out-----
The optimistic you,
Still say-----
Proud to be a part of you
Your fellow friend made it,
But you made it serene-----
By accepting your defeat.
In an act of joy,
You speak out,
I am ready for----

A more refined me
Next time might----
Just be for me.
Never too late----
To come back in one piece.
Prepared for a better aspect,
Not the end of the world----
Is what my conscience whispers.

Flow of letters on paper
My mind conquers it.
With the overpowering emotions
I'd like to make it known,
Competition, a healthy verdict
Unless it turns dysfunctional
With negativity in thoughts.

Make competition healthy----
For a brighter cause.
Pessimistic ideas----
Should go swimming with the fishes.
Let competition be-----
A healthy verdict!
Oh! A healthy verdict!

The Importance of Good Writing

~ Dr. Vizovono Elizabeth

Of all aspects of studying, writing can be considered as probably the most challenging. That is because when you write down an account of your ideas for other people to read, you have to explain yourself particularly carefully. You cannot jump from one point to the other the way you do when you are in conversation with others or mentally thinking about something. To make your meaning clear, using only words on a page, you have to work out exactly what you think about the subject. You come to understand it for yourself in the process of explaining it to others. So writing makes you really grapple with what you are studying. In other words, it forces you into a very deep and powerful kind of learning. That is what makes it so demanding. When you write you are really putting ideas to use.

While writing, you may take ideas from books, articles, reference materials and so on. But it is only when you can use these ideas to say something for yourself that you have really 'learned' them. Ideas only become a properly functioning part of your thought-processes when you use them to communicate with other people. It is very valuable to debate issues with other students in discussion groups. But writing offers a more exact way of using ideas in argument concretely.

A key part of using ideas effectively is to be able to write clearly and persuasively. Writing is a very valuable skill. It gives you an edge over others if you can present your point of view forcefully in writing. Students may come to college with the idea only of learning more about your respective subjects, but you may discover that one of the most valuable things you gain in the process of studying is the ability to write much more effectively. So, no doubt writing is demanding but it can also be the most rewarding part of any course of study. And, because it contributes so much to what you learn, you have to put a lot of your time and energy into it.

The essay is by far the most common form of writing in arts and humanities subjects. The word 'essay' originally meant 'an attempt' or 'try' at something, but now it usually means a short piece of writing on a specific subject. It is a complete piece of writing that can stand alone - it must make sense to the reader 'in itself'. For any subject, when you are required to answer a question in descriptive form, or write an assignment, it is necessary to present it in a properly structured easy form. Each essay is composed of the three basic parts comprising the introduction, body and conclusion.

Usually, you are given an essay title or question, which sets out the issues you need to address. You work from the title, putting together an argument that leads the reader towards a conclusion. The first paragraph of your essay is your introduction. Here you are required to define and explain the meaning of the topic. Show that you understand what is asked in the topic provided or question asked. Also mention briefly the various points to be discussed under this topic. Do not deviate from the topic or add anything that is not relevant to the topic. In the body of the essay, you develop your argument by discussing the points one after the other. These points should be logically connected. One point should lead to the other and each point should be presented in a different paragraph. This seems like a simple thing but you will be surprised at the number of students who fail to put their points in different paragraphs. Many end up writing a very long paragraph of three-four pages. If you do so, your answer is wrong, technically, because you have written a paragraph and not an essay. Besides that, in order to argue your case, it is essential that you always support your points with evidence. This can be in the form of relevant examples, references from the text and data or expert opinions from your readings on the topic. The conclusion of your essay should be a separate paragraph where you summarize all the points discussed in the body of the essay and reiterate what you have stated in your introduction.

Your essay will be marked not only by what you have said but also by the way you have structured and written the essay. Therefore writing an essay is meant to help you develop both your grasp of the subject and your powers of expression. An essay also enables you to develop some original sense of 'trying your hand' at something, with the idea that you can get better at it through practice. It is not necessary to use high-sounding words in an attempt to be impressive. All the great writers recommend that simplicity is the key to good writing. Use simple language and short sentences. Avoid long-winding sentences where you tend to forget where you started and end up somewhere else. Be mindful of your grammar. Stick to one tense. Do not start with the present tense and end with past tense in the same sentence. Correct punctuation marks and capitalization are also important. Taking care of these small things can make all the difference.

Students today have become so dependent on ready-made materials that they struggle to present their own ideas in an original way. Generally, they are also lethargic in writing and preparing notes. But learning to write an essay is a very important part of studying because it deepens your learning of the subject you are studying. It helps you to use ideas to argue your case. It enables you to extend and refine your thinking and writing skills. It is also an effective way of assessing your progress. When you look back over a course you have studied, you will find that the topics you have written about are the ones you understand most clearly and remember best.

GOVERNMENT JOBS VS SELF EMPLOYMENT

WHICH SECTOR IS MORE ESSENTIAL IN THE MAKING OF THE FUTURE OF THE NAGAS?

Rokoneinuo (B.A. 6th Sem. History Dept.) | Winner (Essay competition)

“...Nagas have great potential, all we need is to channelise it in the right direction....”

“WE WORK TO LIVE, WE DO NOT LIVE TO WORK.”

Jobs are essential for an individual to survive and for the society to progress. The more we earn the better we contribute to the society. For the future of the Nagas 'Self-Employment' is the main catalyst.

The Nagas prior to the coming of the British were hardworking people. Everyone was self-employed and were skilled in various arts, crafts, etc. But with the dawn of the 21st century moving in a fast pace with the world, Nagas struggle for better jobs (government sector), better income, better lifestyles, etc. Nagas have great potential, all we need is to channelise it in the right direction.

If one is given the choice between Government jobs and self-employment, most people would choose the easy path - the government sector where one is assured of good salary, job security, lesser workload, etc.

But the government sector too has its own limit. The length of service of the government job holders is only 35 years or till one reaches 65 years of age, whichever comes first, moreover rules and regulations have to be followed by the government servants, the quality of work is not taken into account when giving out salaries, allowances etc. While the self-employment sector assures of better opportunities, no time-bounded, less restrictions. It is a life-long process and even illiterate people can do it if he/she has the skills required for a job. 'More work, better earning', is the principle applied.

The future lies in the hands of the present generation. As each year unfolds, the increase in 'graduate unemployment' continues in the Naga Society. Education is being linked with jobs (government) and it is thought to be futile if one does not attain it. Our mentality is such that we think and believe "Government job is the best job" and the others stand in no comparison to it. One's status is determined by the job one holds. So those who can't make it end up being unemployed. Unemployment in turn threaten the fabric of the society.

The Nagas of today are itching into every sphere of global competition. Some examples of Nagas who have done fairly well in their own unique fields are : Moa Subong, member of Abiogenesis band (Nagaland) being awarded by the president of India for his contribution in the revival of traditional music. He created "Banhum" a musical instrument made of bamboo, Atsu Sekhose, a Naga designer doing fairly well the fashion industry, bands like Alobo Naga and the Band, Divine Connection and even individual artists like Nise Meruno have contributed to the Music industry, Zuboni Humtsoe (founder of Precious Me Love) an e-commerce website, first of its kind in the Northeast and Nungshiba handcrafts etc. Zuboni was awarded the 'Mari Shakti Award' by the President of India for her contribution in new ventures. Entrepreneurs like Neichüte Doulo (Entrepreneur Associate) have also encouraged local entrepreneurs and E.A. has come up to support education for those less-privileged children in the Naga Society. We need to draw inspiration from them, cultivate and encourage new thinking.

For the growth of the society self-employment sector and government sector needs to go hand in hand. The government have realised the importance of 'self-employment' and so gradually joint sectors are also emerging. One positive step in the field is the collaboration between YouthNet and Government of Nagaland imparting training, educating youths, organising seminars across the state. Their aim is "Impact 5000 by 2018". This is an eye-opener and challenge for the Nagas.

The Government of Nagaland has also come up with "Nagaland Vision 2030" where there is a provision stating that the state would 'help produce highly skilled, motivated and equipped individuals embracing diverse job opportunities and lifestyle for all ages, encouraging self-employment and attracting investment.' This is a vision set by our leaders, it is now up to us to make it a reality.

But all these would not be effective unless there is 'change in attitude' of the Nagas. As Mahatma Gandhi once said, "He the change you wish to see in the world." One needs to seriously ponder on this, take steps to venture in other fields where one's talent and interest are binded for better results.

Time has come for the Nagas to think beyond the horizon. Let us chase the vision, not the money, adapt to broader mindset, pave way for progress, reason, think out loud and take up the self-employment sector in a positive way. Better avenues await us as we continue to move on and choose diverse job. The dawn has been set, the sunlight is awaited.

Living

Anonymous

B.A 4th semester | Sociology honours

We value the gift of life because we know death. Don't you think if we lived forever? We wouldn't learn to see the beauty every second holds.

With time, a caterpillar changes to a butterfly but the butterfly too dies with time. When we look into the heart of life there is but one theme encrypted in it which reads, 'It will pass'. This is the motto of life nothing last forever, everything has to go somewhere.

Joy-sorrow, laughter-tears, living-dying are all ingredients that looked up the one fine dish we call 'Life'. Take a deeper thought, can you produce good music by pressing just the white key in the piano?

A tree is fruitful when it learns to find the mineral and water in the soil and ignores the dirt and stone in it. Drilling in the roots till you find what you want and springs out by breaking the hardest top soil. That's when you start living.

In moments of despair and distress God wants you to learn how to count your blessings and grow while in your peak of happiness and joy. God reminds you that life is worth living by showing you the beauty of life in fullness.

Be like an eagle, in times of storms it flies up above the clouds itself and lands only when the storms passes. But don't forget that with own might it still cannot fly forever. It lands when its wings get weary. However high you fly sometimes and somewhere you will have to land. Just be wise enough to know where to land.

It is too early to feel lonely and rejected when someone, somewhere loves you and would die to see you live. That someone values you more than their very live itself. But if you still deny the fact that 'someone' exists, you still cannot deny the fact that God loves you twice as much and He had undergone twice as hard the pain, you bear when he died for you

So the next time 'Life' pinches you somewhere, somehow you should realise that it just wants your attention to show you more of itself.

THE UNSUNG HEROES

Reinsangba | B.Com 6th Semester

Years ago, there was a shy, timid boy who thought and wished his college life to be full of fun and excitement. Being a new member with no experience he came empty. It was during the first week of his college, he met some couple of friends with whom he shared his thoughts and bunked classes together as well. Lately exposed but he too had a 'crush' on one of his own classmates (mmmm....). That was ME two years ago.

You know, as I stepped on to the college life, I always thought I would meet new friends and make good memories with them. However it was more than just making memories but I've also learnt that college life is more of an opportunity to focus on what we actually want to do in life and start working on it. It is also a time where we must be alert to build ourselves with best qualities and get ignited with the vision for our future life.

Friends, our lecturers have really toiled unseen and unsung humble labours. They have tirelessly laboured, away from the limelight and applause and helping us grow each day. Sometimes, some of them instead of being thanked, have been understood and even accused. And some not only taught sincerely but also spiritually fed us daily. The invaluable contribution made by the lecturers cannot be either expressed or measured.

We pay our highest respect and honour to these UNSUNG HEROES. Hats off!

"of My Journey" Ikugumbe Iralu

It was back then in the beginning of "My Journey" as a student, I anxiously fancied about the end of my student life, imagining about making big money and using it on my own and not attending classes. But lately I realized that I was a fool because the best days of life are my college days.

It would be incomplete on my part to leave without some words of appreciation. Therefore, at first I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to all the lecturers, specially the lecturers from English Department for being selfless and bringing out the best of me, I am what I am today because of you. Secondly, I would also like to thank my colleagues i.e. Student Council, BapCo Focus Editorial, and Yearbook Team for having me in. It was a great learning experience and I also had an immense pleasure working with you all. I have learned the art of "Team Work" from you. Working as a photographer enabled me to picture life from a different "angle". "Life is like photography, FOCUS on what is important, CAPTURE the good times, DEVELOP from the NEGATIVE, and if things don't work out take another SHOT". Saving the best for the last, my heartfelt thanks to my SUPERHEROES & CIDs for always being there for me through thick and thin. You made me realize the meaning of "True Friendship"; it is quite amazing that in such a short span of time, FRIENDSHIP evolved into something more like a "FAMILY". I look forward to holding on to our never ending FRIENDSHIP and bond we share no matter what. No doubt I'm going to miss every little thing we did together.

"My Journey" in Baptist College gone by so fast, yet memories is too full which I will always relish in days to come. I had my share of failures, misunderstanding, stupidity and mischievous deeds, but between all these experiences I have grown wiser. My life in college was like a test, a test for making something out of myself and in the process it taught me many things and changed me in many ways. I have found myself a dream and ambition to work on to.

Now that the much talked about our departure has finally arrived, with my heavy heart I bid you ADIEU dear FRIENDS. My sincerest gratitude to each and every one of you for adding meaning to "My Journey". I wish you all the good things that life could possibly bring. Shine bright wherever you go and have a successful journey ahead. You guys will always be xeroxed in my memories. I will tell you more about "My Journey" when we meet again somewhere someday. Till then FARE THEE WELL class of 2k17

REPUBLIC DAY EXPERIENCE

Azi Thuzu, NSS volunteer
B.A. 6th Semester History Dept.

My experience during the Republic day parade had been phenomenal, I feel proud to be an NSS volunteer because of which I got the opportunity to march during the Republic day which was also not easy because it was about 5km march to the Rajpat. How I made so many new friends who came from all over India. Some of my friends even thought that I don't understand hindi. I also got the privilege of meeting the Prime Minister, the President and the Vice-President of our country which was a lifetime experience.

Lastly I want to thank our principal, lecturers-in-charge for allowing me to participate and represent our college at the republic parade. I also share my gratitude to my parents and friends who gave me support and guidance during my whole stay at the Republic day camp.
